JING TOPICS AT MANY POINTS. THE ARCHER EXTRADITION CASE-CHURCH AND STATE IN PRUSSIA-THE DYNAMITE PRISONERS ON TRIAL-PERSONAL TOPICS.

The extradition from this country of "Captain Archer," on a charge of forgery, is pronounced in the Bow Street Police Court, London, the result of a conspiracy. The debate on the Prussian Church bill was begun in the lower house of the Landtag yesterday; Herr von Bennigsen has resigned his seat in that body and in the Reichstag. The trial of the dynamite conspirators was began; Lynch, alias Norman, repeated his testimony. The celebration to commemorate the services of John Bright in Parliament was begun in Birmingham. Signor Coccapieller has resigned his seat in the Italian Chamber of Deputies. Dr. Zukertort has won the first prize in the chess tournament.

THE SURRENDER OF "CAPTAIN ARCHER." LONDON, June 11 .- Edwin H. Wadge, alias Captain Archer, alias Major Templar, now out on bail on a charge of forgery, on which he was extradited from New-York, should have appeared at the Bow Street Police Court to-day, but he failed to attend. The case was remanded from Saturday last, when the public prosecutor stated that there had been a gross abuse of the provisions of the Extradition Treaty. The prisoner, he said, was really wanted to answer for another charge at Bristol. The persons who deposed to the information on which his extradition was granted had not appeared, and it was a question whether they were not indictable for conspiracy.

The examination of Wadge, or "Captain Archer," as he was known, took place in this city last month before Commissioner Osborne. The prisoner was charged by the British Consul with having uttered a forzed acceptance in London on November 24 last and on this charge was extradited. The written testimony against the accused man included the depositions of James Conner and Charles Henry Boorman, in which it was charged that Archer, or Wadge, had presented a bill of exchange for £65 Ibs. to Boorman with a forged acceptance by Conner. The documents were certified by F. Flowers, the magistrate of the Bow Street Police Court, by the British Under Secretaries for Home and Foreign Affairs, and by

Mr. Lowell, the United States Minister:

At the examination Inspector Shore, of the Loudon Municipal Police, testified that the prisoner was sentenced to five years' imprisonment at Manchester several years ago on a charge of fraud. There was a charge of the control of the co made against him several months ago for fraud in connection with some Cornish mining companies, and Archer gave ball in 2500, the Rev. Mr. Brown and Mr. Slingsby, a tailor, becoming the sureties. Mr. Brown complained to the Bristol police in January that he thought Archer intended to leave the country. An effort was made to arrest Archer, but he was not found. In was made to arrest Archer, but he was not found. In the latter part of January the complaint for forgery was made and a warrant was issued. Inspector Shore attended the Bristol assizes on February 1, to testify to the arrest on the charge of fraud, but Archer did not appear, and has ball was forfeited.

The prisoner's story of the case was that he has a brother of a somewhat similar name and appearance, who is taken for him, and that the brother is the one who should have been arrested. He persisted in the statement that his name was Archer, and said that while his name was originally Wadge it was legally changed on his inhersting money from an uncle. He declared that the detectives desired to get him in London so that they could try im on a charge of frand. Mr. Marbury, the counsel for the British Consul, and the Inspector, however, both said that the policy of the British Government was to try an extradited erininal only on the charge on which his extrantition was asked, and that he would not be arrested for any other crime without an opportunity being given him to leave the country. Captain Archer seemed to have plenty of money, which has epent freely in "creating" his friends after the examination was insided. He fived for several weeks at the Pfith Avenue Hotel and the Hotel Brunswick, and at apartments in Pifthave. He appeared to have all the money he needed. One of his friends said that his principal fault was that he "tried to introduce Wall bitest into London," and that the extred to introduce Wall bit in the said.

DEBATING THE PRUSSIAN CHURCH BILL. Beatin, June 11 .- The parties in the Landtag ler the Government's new Church order of the polynomia of have agreed upon the special committee to be apbill and suggest amendments to it. The Government journals maintain that the bill is not a concession to the Roman Curia but 18 framed in the interests of the monarchy itself, as the Catholics are fully justified in complaining of the present state of affairs. It is hoped by the Government that the Conservatives and Liberals will unite against the Ultramoutanes who demand more than the Govcrument is willing to grant.

The lower house of the Landtag debated the Church bill. Herr Windthorst, the Ultramontane leader, declared that the Centre must await the close of the debate before assuming a definite position in regard to the measure.

Herr von Gossler, Minister of Public Instruction and Ecclesiastical Affairs, denied that the measure was merely intended to provide for the cure of souls in cases of necessity. The bill was an earnest en-deavor on the part of the Government to ascertain whether or not it was possible to maintain peace between the Chuch and State.

RESIGNATION OF HERR VON BENNIGSEN. Herr Von Bennigsen has resigned his seat in the Lower House of the Landtag without assigning any reason for doing so. He has also resigned his scat n the Reichstag. Before announcing his intention he held a conference with the members of his party (the National Liberals) in Tegard to the divergency of views among them on the new Church bill. His action has caused a great sensation.

The Hanorer Courier attributes the resignation to the confusion which now prevails in political affairs, especially to the difference existing between Herr Von Bennigsen and the majority of his party in regard to the Church bill.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE VATICAN. LONDON, June 11 .- A dispatch to The Times from Paris says that the Vatican was aware of the terms of the Prussian Church bill before it was introduced. Although it could not support it, as it implied the abandonment of certain principles, it agreed not to protest against it, but tacitly to accept it as admitting the resumption of negotiations.

THE TRIAL OF THE DYNAMITEURS BEGUN, LONDON, June 11 .- The trial of the dynamite conspirators, Dr. Gallagher, Bernard Gallagher, Ausburgh, Curtin, Whitehead and Wilson, who are charged with treason-felony, was begun this morning. The Court-room was crowded. Mr. Clarke, Q. C., of counsel for the defence, challenged three of thejurors in behalf of Dr. Gallagher- Ausburgh will conduct his own defence. Sir Heury James, the Attorney-General, opened the case for the prosecution. He said that the prisopers were charged with an offence which was very near high treason. It was necessary to prove that all the prisoners included in the indictment for treason-felony had intended to levy war against the Queen. In order to establish this offence it was sufent to show that a conspiracy existed to take hves and destroy property without regard to who suffered. He said Bernhard Gallagher was in a different position from the other prisoners. His own ent might be considered to connect him with the dynamite plot, but the very careful weighing so as not to risk punishing an innocent man. If the facts alleged against the prisoners were fully established, there was not a person in the country who would not be pleased that they had been brought to justice.

Lyneb, alias Norman, the informer, was called to the stard. He repeated the testimony in regard to doings of the conspirators previous to and after their arrival in England from America, which he gave at the preliminary hearing in the Bow Street

Lynch, on being cross-examined, said that he never saw Wilson or Ansburgh before he saw them to the Bow Street Police Court. Between the two terviews with the authorities, at which he offered o turn informer, he had appeared at the Bow Street Pelice Court He told a little more at the second interview than he had before, concerning Fenian clubs in New York and their objects. The "Irish Republic," he said, was mentioned in the oath be took in New York when he joined the conspirators. took in New York when he joined the conspitators. He was not aware that Ireland had had a separate narliament during the last century. He had never been associated with any plot or rebellion in England or Ireland. It was of ne account to him whether Ireland became a republic or had home rule. He had never conversed with Dr. Gallagher in anybody clse's presence. His suspicions had been aronsed by a spring which Gallagher handed him and which fitted a hammer made to explode a cap. He admitted that he had broken his oath to the Emerald Club in New-York which was as binding as the one he had taken in court. He was then again examined by the presention, when he said he did not know the objects of the society until he joined it and then he did not like to back out.

After other witnesses had testified to prove that Whitehead had purchased acids, glycerine and other compounds used in the manufacture of explosives, the Court adjourned.

> HIS SECOND TRIP TO EUROPE GIVEN UP A PLEASANT VOYAGE IN SPITE OF THE ACCIDENT-NOT MUCH INTERESTED IN STOCKS NOW.

According to daily custom when at home, William H. Vanderbilt went out driving yesterday afternoon, although he had just landed from a trip to Europe. His return voyage was marred by the discovery, on the third day out, of a flaw in the shaft of the Britannic which compelled her to return to port. This accident caused a delay of a week, but Mr. Vanderbilt preferred to wait for the completion of the repairs rather than return on any other than his favorite ship.

"Were you not frightened ?" a TRIBUNE reporter asked Mr. Vanderbilt yesterday after he had returned from his drive. 'I knew nothing at all about it until after we had been two or three hours on our way back Liverpool," Mr. Vanderbilt replied. amount to much anyway, but the captain thought it was best to put back. We were less than two hours longer in making the distance than we had been the first time, but then the wind was with us all the way. I don't think I should have been afraid to come right along, but it was best to go back, of course, for in heavy weather the ship would probably have been disabled.

"Yes, I am very well. I am a little tired to-day, but that is owing entirely to being on shipboard. After I have rested I shall feel first rate; my health is good. I did fntend to make a second trip to Europe in July, but I hardly think I shall go again this season. You see, I have really had three sea voyages in this trip; perhaps they are enough for the present. I do not know whether my wife will want to go. It will depend entirely on her whether I carry out my original plans."

"You will go to Saratoga, if not to Europe !" the reporter said inquiringly.

"No, I shall not go to Saratoga anyway. If the trip to Europe should be given up. I really have no plans for the summer. Perhaps I shall stay herewhy shouldn't It New-York is a good place to live in. I don't find any better place anywhere, "I shall have Mand S. brought up here, and shall drive her on the road occasionally. Been doing well ? She always does well; she will do anything you ask her. That mare can do everything but talk, and she knows enough to do that. I guess I'll have her up here; I want to see her again. Yes, Cornelius will sail on Wednesday. He is going over with his wife and boy. He will not be gone nore than six weeks. Oh, no, he is not going on business at all. It will be a mere pleasure trip;

that is all."

"A meeting of the trunk-line presidents has been talked about a good deal lately."

"Well, I am not a president any longer," Mr. Vanderbilt said in reply, and as he spoke he laughed pleasantly. "I am not a president and I don't care whether they meet or not. But what do don't care whether they meet or not. But what do Vanderbilt said in reply, and as as apoke he laughed pleasantly. "I am not a president and I don't care whether they meet or not. But what do they want to meet for, anyhow? The Grand Trunk cutting rates? Why, of course the Grand Trunk is cutting rates. It wouldn't do any business at all if it did not cut rates. The only thing for us to do is to say how far they may cut them. That's all there is about that. There isn't much need of a presidents' meeting, if the cutting of rates by the Grand Trunk is all the presidents would have to talk about."

"Stocks are a little higher the they were when you went away."

"Are they? I do not take much interest in the stock market. I hardly know what the price of any one stock is. I don't care about the movements of prices. I have nothing to sell—no matter what people say about it—and, for that matter, I have nothing to buy. I have what I want to hold, and don't care to sell or buy. So, you see, the stock market has nothing to interest me."

"But you will buy the West Shore road, by and by, will you not?" the reporter modestly asked.

"West Shore? What should I want of the West Shore road? Why, I should have two elephants on my hands then—that is, I should think that I had. No, I do not want to buy the West Shore road; I certainly have no use for it. Opened to Newburg, is ni? What time does it make to Newburg! I suppose it would make rather slow time. Have they succeeded in filling up that hole up there where the tracks used to disappear regularly every night? I hope the men who built the road will make money out of it. I presume they will, but they may not do so well as they expected. At any rate I have got all the railroads I want. I have not the slightest wish to control any more."

WYNKOOP & HALLENBECK'S GRIEVANCE.

The action of the Postmaster-General in cancelling the award of the contract for bound blanks and blank books for the money-order business, made to Wynkoop & Hallenbeck, of No. 121 Fulton-st., this city, has caused that firm to announce their in-tention of beginning a suit against the Postmaster-General for $100,000 damages. After the publication of the bids and after the awards had been made, but previous to the actual execution of the contract, the Postmaster-General sent a telegram to Wynkoop & Hallenbeck stating that the award of the contract to them had been cancelled on account of an error in some of the bids, cancelled on account of an error in some of the bids, and proposals would again be advertised for. The "error" was on the part of the Government Printer, who claims that in his bid the price of a certain blank blook was made $1.94 when it should have been 94 cents. This would make a difference in his bid of $5,700, while Wynkoop & Hallenbeck's bid was $5,352 below that of the Government Printer. Wynkoop & Hallenbeck state that they were practically the only competitor to the Government Printer, and as their estimate is now fully known to the Government Printer, he can readily make his estimate lower.

WAS IT A CASE OF FORGERY WHY THE BUILDING BILL WAS GPPOSED.

SOME LIGHT ON ACTION AT ALBANY IN THE CLOS-

ING HOURS OF THE LEGISLATURE. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed by prominent architects and builders in this city at the fail-ure of the Legislature to pass the Building bill which was prepared with great care in the interests of the property-owners and the general public, and which was approved by Mayor Edson and Inspector Esterbrook, and heartily advocated by the latter. Since the adjournment of the Legislature considerable tight has been thrown upon the influences which were at work to defeat the bill. Two of the Fire Commissioners who were credited with secretly working to procure its defeat, and who spoke openly as not being in favor of the bill, con-fessed afterward that they had not read it and did not know its character. Politicians who were known to be opposed to the measure have given several excuses to conceal their motives. It is asserted by friends of the proposed law that it was too purely in the interest of honest building to meet with the support of all the politicians. When an attempt was made, late in the session, to call the bill up for a vote in the Assembly it was believed that a majority of the members were in favor of passing it, but its consideration was prevented by the objection of Mr. Van Allen. of the VIIth Assembly District of this city, Mr. Crane, of the XXIIId, and Mr. Roosevelt, of the XXIst. The action of the latter caused particular surprise, inasmuch as he was known to have been the Senate, and was expected to become its vigor-ous champion when it should reach the Assembly. This surprise was heightened on the part of Mr. Esterbrook last Saturday when he heard from William S. Andrews, a lawyer and ex-Assemblyman of the Democratic persuasion, that Mr. Roosevelt had told him of a dispatch signed by Colonel Emmons Clark, Secretary of the Board of Health, strongly opposing the passage of the proposed law. When aspoken to on the subject by a TRIBUNE reporter yesterday, Colonel Clark said he had not sent such a telegram to Albany.

"I do not remember having sent either a telegram or a letter to Mr. Roosevelt while the Logisiance was in session," he added, "and I made no attempt to defeat the bill. I have not read the bill, and I could not have known of any objectionable features in it."

This statement gave rise to a theory that perhaps a forged telegram had been made to play a part in the defeat of the measure. Mr. Andrews, at the request of a Tribune reporter, wrote the following statement of his connection with the matter:

My recollection is, that having received a letter from man of the Democratic persuasion, that Mr. Rooss-in favor of the bill when it was first introduced in quest of a Thibune reporter, whole the following statement of his connection with the matter:

My recollection is, that having received a letter from New-York, asking me to do whatever might be in my power to aid the passage of the Buildings Law Bill, with the provisions of which I was familiar, I made some isquirtea about it, and learned from Colonel M. C. Murpby, Chairman of the Committee on Cities, that he was unable to have the bill ordered to a third reading, because Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Crane and Mr. Van Allen, all Republicans from New-York City, objected to it. I was surprised at this, and thinking that there might be some mistake, I went to Mr. Roosevelt, who was in his seat in the Assembly Chamber, and asked him if he was opposed to the bill. He said that he had objected to its being ordered to a third reading, that he bad not had time to examine it since it came from the Senate, that Mr. Van Allen was opposed to it, and that there were some persons in New-York II whom he had confidence, that were opposed to it, and that he had occurred it cannot say which a dispatch from Colonel Emmons Clark to the effect that it ought not to pass. This was, as I recollect, at about 1 p. non Friday, May 4—the last day of the session. I shall be glad to have Mr. Roosevelt either corroborate or correct this statement a Tribune reporter.

Mr. Roosevelt either corroborate or correct this statement according to his recollection of the conversation.

Fortified with this statement a Tribune reporter called on Mr. Roosevelt, who, after reading it, denied that he had made the assertion about the dispatch from Colonel Clark, and added an explanation of his course in helping to defeat the bill. Mr. Roosevelt said: "I had several conversations with Mr. Andrews in Albany, and, although I do not recollect this particular one, I have no doubt that it is correctly reported except that I never received, so far as I now recollect, a dispatch or any communication from Colonel Clark on the subject, and certainly did not speak about one to Mr. Andrews. Mr. Andrews must have confused my remarks with those of somebody elsa. I received numerous letters from builders against the bill. Originally I favored it, but it came down from the Senate in the last moments of the session containing a number of amendments that I was told were very obnoxious; one in particular designed to increase enormously the business of a certain firm dealing in a particular kind of stone. In other words, from all I could learn, a number of jobs had been put in the bill, and it was proposed to rush it through without debate or examination in the closing debate or examination in the closing moments of the session. I therefore objected to its going to third reading absolutely without any examination, and afterward found that Messrs. Crane and Van Allen were also opposed to the bill. I have not the slightest recollection of either seeing or receiving a dispatch from Colonel Clark, and I certainly said nothing to Mr. Andrews about one."

TRYING TO ABDUCT MR. GILL. A carriage drove up to the door of No. 149 East Twenty-sixth-st. last night, and Alice and Harries Woodhall emerged from the house leading John Gill, the old gentleman who is said by his relatives to be unable to manage his affairs. Just as the old was ushered into the coach his son William, who lives at No. 151 East Twentysixth-st., appeared and attempted to induce sixth-st., appeared and attempted to induce his father to defer his journey. The women assisted the old man and a lively struggle followed. A large crowd congregated, among them an officer from the Eighteenth Precinct, who summoned assistance and the contestants were taken to the police station. There William was charged with stealing a satchel and with assault and battery. He in turn charges Alice Woodhall with having assaulted him, while Harriet Woodball was charged with disorderly conduct.

The legal proceedings in connection with Mr. Gill's sanity were up in the courts yesterday, and an account of them will be found in the regular court reports.
